Next Moon Walk to Go Twice as Far

By JIM STROTHMAN
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston AP — Astronauts aboard America's next moon-landing adventure, Apollo 12, plan to walk on the lunar surface twice as long they won't leave earth before Nov. 10 and may not go until January.

Later flights, probably beginning with Apollo 13, will take astronauts to rougher mountain regions as part of a four-year program of exploring the moon.

While a final decision has not been made, Lt. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, Apollo program director, said Apollo 12 probably will try to land on a relatively flat plain in the western half of the moon near the lunar equator.

Apollo 11's landing site in the Sea of Tranquility was also on the moon's equator, but in the east-central section of the moon's visible face.

Apollo 12 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., 38; Richard F. Gordon Jr., 39; and Alan L. Bean, 37, are tentatively scheduled to blast off sometime between Nov. 10 and Nov. 17. But last April, Dr. Wilmut Hess, chief scientist at NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center, recommended that six months elapse between Apollo flights after the first lunar landing so scientists have more time to analyze rocks and photographs returned from a previous mission.

They could then apply this knowledge to the next flight, Hess said, giving scientists a better idea of what astronauts should look for to get the most out of the mission.

While Gordon remains in lunar orbit taking care of the command of the ship, Conrad and Bean are to take two excursions outside the lunar module LM for a total of more than five hours. Neil A. Armstrong walked on the moon 2 hours 14 minutes, while Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. spent 1 hour 44 minutes outside.

Ceres was the first asteroid to be discovered. Found in 1801, it is still the largest that has ever been discovered.

Liberty Baptist Revival Sunday

REV. GENE OUTLER

The Liberty Baptist Church of Hope will begin a revival this week-end, July 27, with the Rev. Gene Outler as evangelist.

Rev. Outler is pastor of the Unity Baptist church of Bismark, Arkansas. He pastored the Liberty Baptist church here several years ago.

Revival services will begin each night at 7:30. The church is located just off the Rosston Road on California. Rev. Kenneth Bazar is the pastor of the church.

Some years ago, already laden with honors and loot, Burt thought of quitting the industry, trying a new field. But now, still ruggedly trim at 55, he has changed that idea.

"All I want to do is to go on as long as I can making films that touch people emotionally and express what I feel about life," he said. "You can't just quit because you are ahead."

When he isn't on location abroad, Burt, who shuns all forms of ostentation, lives quietly in Bel Air, Calif., with his wife, Norma, a former USO entertainer he met while he was in the Army, and their five children.

Vietnam Deaths Sub-Average

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — American battlefield deaths in Vietnam increased 23 per cent last week to a total of 182 but were 23 per cent below the weekly average for the year, the U.S. Command reported today.

South Vietnamese headquarters said 295 government troops were killed, a decrease of 16 per cent over the previous week. Enemy casualties also dropped slightly, from 2,369 to 2,203 last week, according to the weekly casualty report.

The South Vietnamese attributed the decrease in their battle dead to a 20 per cent decrease in enemy activity. A spokesman for the U.S. Command said action picked up somewhat last week, and that the South Vietnamese report of a decrease was "their evaluation."

The total of American dead was the highest since June 22-28, soon after the start of the battle of the lull which today went into its sixth week. That week 241 U.S. troops were killed.

U.S. spokesmen said they did not consider the increase in American battle deaths last week significant. Other authoritative U.S. military sources said it appears a major enemy attack is unlikely before the end of August and the outlook even into September is "hazy."

The weekly average of Americans killed in combat now stands at 235 for the year. The total week before last was 148, the lowest since the first week of the year.

In the absence of large-scale fighting, almost all of the casualties since mid-June have been inflicted in scores of "small unit" contacts that occur daily and by booby traps.

Informed American sources say these contacts—involving units of 10 to 100 Americans—have been averaging about 60 per day for most of the last two weeks.

The U.S. Command said today that American field operations were continuing at normal levels. Spokesmen declined comment on a published report that the Nixon administration was preparing a major shift in the U.S. strategy of "maximum pressure" on the enemy to test whether the lull indicates an enemy move to de-escalate the war.

Top American officers in Saigon generally believe the lull is just another interim period of enemy reorganization, retraining and resupply prior to another series of attacks.

American B52 bombers carried out raids in widely scattered parts of South Vietnam as ground fighting remained light. Targets for the bombers included base camps, bunkers, tunnels and weapons positions.

The U.S. Command reported seven enemy rocket and mortar attacks Wednesday night. Two were against American positions but casualties were light and there were no deaths, the command said.

South Korean headquarters reported 171 North Vietnamese troops killed in an operation under way near Hoi An, south of Da Nang. The Korean marines conducting the sweep in the coastal region also captured eight prisoners and 85 weapons, while losing three killed and nine wounded, Korean spokesmen said.

A South Vietnamese government spokesman reported today that nearly 200 South Vietnamese boys and girls have been kidnapped since early this year and taken to North Vietnam for training in subversive activities. He said the youths were 12 to 21 years old and about two thirds of them were kidnapped by North Vietnamese infiltrators in the northern part of the country.

The U.S. Command announced the conclusion of Operation Russell Beach on July 21, the fourth multibattalion operation in the northern part of the country to be terminated in the last eight days.

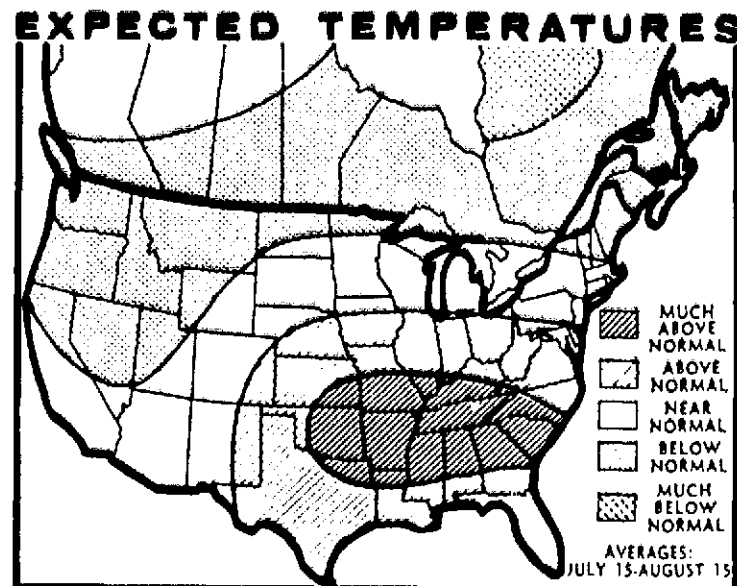

This left a total of seven announced operations of battalion size or larger under way in the northern five provinces, a low figure reached only once before this year, in March. Normally nine to 10 operations are usually in effect in that area, and U.S. officials pointed out that other as-yet-unannounced operations may be in progress there.

Russell Beach, on the Batangan peninsula, a Viet Cong coastal stronghold, began Jan. 13. In a few weeks, 158 enemy and 56 Americans were reported killed, but since March there has been little action.

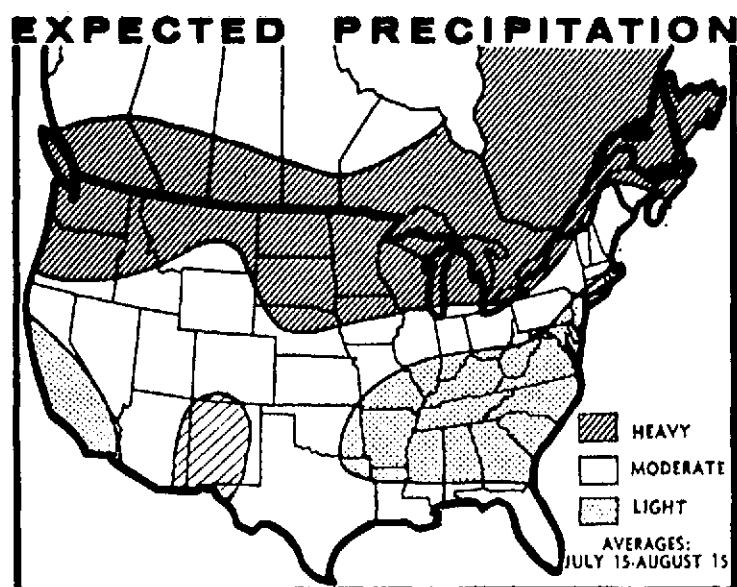

The command also reported one American Marine killed and 10 wounded early today in an enemy mortar attack.

SUMMER SCENE

Maps show Weather Bureau's forecast of average temperature, precipitation for period thru Aug. 15.

Above-normal temperatures are expected in areas east of the Continental Divide except for near to below normal in the northern border states.

Above-normal precipitation is forecast in northern border states and over the southern Rockies. Little rainfall is expected in southern California.

sion control told Apollo 11.

They slammed into the outer limits of the atmosphere, at 400,000 feet altitude, like a speeding bullet. Their 24,602-mile-an-hour speed was dramatically slowed by the thickening atmosphere, and forces six times the pull of gravity pressed the spacemen against their couches.

During the hottest part of re-entry, ionized gases enveloped the plunging spaceship and 'blocked' radio communications for more than three minutes.

Before losing contact, Armstrong took a last look at the scene of Sunday's adventure and reported: "We have the moon in the field of view right now."

While Apollo 11 still was in the blackout period, its fiery plunge was sighted by tracking plane, which made radio contact.

It disappeared for a few minutes in a cloud bank and then came back in full view of the cheering sailors on the deck. "You're right on target," the Hornet radioed Apollo 11.

Five minutes before landing three small parachutes popped out to stabilize the craft. Seconds later, at 10,000 feet, three main 83.5-foot chutes blossomed majestically and Apollo 11 floated gently downward into the Pacific at 22 m.p.h.

Originally, Apollo 11 was to have landed 250 miles to the west. But a forecast of thunderstorms for that area prompted a change. The astronauts steered to the new site by changing the angle of the spaceship as they dipped into the atmosphere. It was the first time in the Apollo program that manual action had to be taken to change the course of a ship during re-entry.

As their eight-day journey of discovery neared an end, Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins beamed a final television show to earth Wednesday night. In a moving 12 minutes, they thanked God and all the people on earth who made their trip possible.

Commander Armstrong, the first man to step on the moon, said: "The responsibility for this flight lies first with history and with the giants of science who preceded this effort."

"Next, to the American people who have through their will indicated their desire. Next the four administrations and their congresses, for implementing that will."

"And then to the agency and the industry team that built our spacecraft, the Saturn, the Columbia, the Eagle and EMU—the spacesuit and backpack that was our small spacecraft out on the lunar surface."

Aldrin, who strode the lunar surface with Armstrong, said: "We've come to the conclusion that this has been far more than three men on a voyage for the moon. . . . We feel this stands as a symbol of the insatiable curiosity of all mankind to explore the unknown. . . . We accepted this challenge of going to the moon. The acceptance of this challenge was inevitable."

Aldrin said the flight brought to mind a song of praise from the Eighth Psalm of the Bible: "When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which Thou hast ordained, what is man that Thou art mindful of him."

G.F. Engineer Says Private Job Charged

By HARRY KING

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Raymond Hudson, chief of the Engineering Division of the state Game and Fish Commission, testified today that work done on the farms of Commissioner Raymond Farris of Biscoe was charged to a legitimate commission project.

Hudson also said some materials used in the project were charged to the Dagmar project of the commission.

Hudson testified at the ouster hearings for Farris, who has been charged with 10 counts of misconduct in office by Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller. Two of the charges concern commission employees doing work on Farris' farms near Biscoe and Carlisle.

Rockefeller also said Farris did not pay for the work until about nine months after it had been done.

H. W. McMillan of Arkadelphia, the governor's evidence officer, asked Hudson about the expense of the project.

Farris understood and he stated to me that he would take care of all the costs the Game and Fish Commission couldn't take care of," Hudson said.

He also said Farris asked him if funds allocated for the Dagmar project were sufficient to cover the work on his farm. Hudson said he told Farris there was enough money and that Farris told him to proceed with the work.

Hudson testified Wednesday that his monthly reports reflected work on Farris' farms. He produced the reports for July and August 1966 today and neither specifically identified Farris' land.

Rockefeller, meanwhile, said Wednesday he was a prejudiced judge in his attempt to oust Farris.

Television and Radio

By JERRY BUICK
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hope Lange's reaction was not typical of actors and actresses who have had television series canceled. She says she was delighted.

She and her husband, movie producer-director Alan Pakula, went off and celebrated after NBC axed "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir." "I said, wonderful, I can join the human race again. I'll have time for gardening, swimming."

Miss Lange had been in and out of retirement since gaining stardom in 1957 in "Bus Stop" and "Peyton Place." It took some persuading to get her to come back for the series last year.

"I got so in the habit of not working," she said. "There are so many other things to do. When you're away it's like starting all over again."

"One reason I decided to do this show, besides liking the project, which was the real reason, was that many people were beginning to think I had retired," she said.

Miss Lange's elation over the cancellation was short-lived. "We were on a ship heading for the Caribbean when I heard ABC had picked up I. I went into a fun. But now I'm delighted." Even so, she said she hopes

THE WAY TO BEAUTY

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(INEA)—Beauty and convenience must go hand-in-hand as far as an airline hostess is concerned. Even a natural beauty like Ritva Haimi, who was Miss Finland in 1961, knows that she has to make the most of her appearance.

But there is little time for a leisurely grooming routine on a schedule that includes Finnair's new Helsinki-to-New York flight. The passengers may rest on the way, but Ritva can't and neither can her looks.

Clairol, to work out a streamlined beauty plan for busy hostesses like Ritva, called in top-flight experts who went to work with the latest hair care and cosmetic products, geared for speed and convenience. The "beauty-in" was staged in New York City.

Ritva's superlong dark hair, which practically reaches her waist, proves that not all Scandinavian beauties are blondes. Tony Migliaro of the Michel Kazan salon persuaded her to cut three inches off to make her hair easier to handle.

Natural medium brown hair coloring with conditioner restored her hair to the rich luster it had when she was a child. Great body treatment added extra bounce for the curly up-do Tony fashioned for her. The conditioner-setting lotion insures that Ritva's style will stay lovely during the trans-Atlantic flight.

Make-up master Stan Place, known for the natural look, used the California Girl look to warm up Ritva's cool beauty. The make-up was light with a rosy glow.

With her beauty plan under control, Ritva is able to give full time to looking after the passengers' well being.

When she is not working, Ritva enjoys the outdoors. During the summer months, she and her husband and pimiento, held together with mayonnaise and seasoned with sweet pickles and caraway seed. Broiled on bun halves, it's a tempting hot sandwich for breezy days.

Dried beef in jars can be kept on the convenience food shelf, says Reba Staggs, home economist at the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Packaged, chipped beef is held in the refrigerator.

Trailburgers

- 2 jars (2 ounces each) dried beef
 - 1 cup cottage cheese
 - 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
 - 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
 - 1 cup coarsely chopped sweet pickles
 - 1 cup coarsely chopped celery
 - 1 teaspoon caraway seed
 - 4 hamburger buns
- Chop dried beef finely. Combine meat, cottage cheese, pimiento, mayonnaise, pickles, celery and caraway seed. Spread meat mixture on bun halves. Place on rack in broiler pan. Set regulator for broiling. Place in broiler so that meat is 3 to 5 inches from heat. Broil 3 to 5 minutes. 8 servings.

Former Miss Finland, Ritva Haimi, now a Finnair hostess, has to make the most of her looks. She recently was a guest at a "beauty-in," where top-flight experts showed how to care for hair and skin with speed and convenience—knowledge that could be a boon to any traveler.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

IT'S ALL GUESSWORK

Dear Helen: Is there any accurate estimate on the percentage of young people (older ones, too) who take illegal drugs in the United States?

How about hashish? Are the kids taking it up because it's stronger? Is it more habit-forming than marijuana, and more dangerous?

Lastly, is LSD getting more popular again?—JACK

Dear Jack: Getting valid statistics on our so-called drug culture is even more difficult than determining the percentage of our unwed non-virgins. It depends on where you conduct the survey, who and how you ask, how honest they are. . . and also what you want to prove. This last is very important, for two questionnaires at the same school can "prove" totally conflicting points.

For example, several well publicized "guesstimates" report that over 50 percent of all university students smoke pot. This the series doesn't last more than three or four years. Besides switching networks, the series is moving to a new time period. It will be seen at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays, matched against CBS' top-rated "Family Affair" and NBC's "Daniel Boone."

Miss Lange, whose performance in the series brought her an Emmy, said, "I like comedy. It's more difficult. I'd always been a dramatic actress and I like the idea of trying it."

"Playing comedy, just as your ownself, is tricky," she said. "It's particularly hard to do if you're tired. You've got to have that spark and spontaneity. Eventually, you find yourself instinctively knowing where the laugh is, and how to play up and down to it."

Playing opposite a ghost presents a ticklish problem. "You have got to be careful with the ghost and myself," she said. "We can't develop the relationship because there's nowhere to go. But I love the fantasy of it. I find it appealing."

At times the ghost is bombastic, unreasonable and frustrating. He interferes with her life when he's not welcome. But, asked Miss Lange, "how many widows get to deal with a ghost—and a good looking one at that,"

Seal In Your Manicure

To protect a just-done manicure, spray on one of the nail enamel fixatives which seal in your manicure and prevent your nails from becoming smudged.

may be true in certain areas but, on the other hand, a questionnaire returned by nearly 85 percent of students at an average California college indicated that over 75 percent had never even TRIED marijuana, and only 11 percent had used it over 10 times. These findings coincide with a nationwide survey conducted by a psychologist at Yale University. He says illegal drug use is not as widespread as is generally supposed, and less than five percent of our students could be termed real "heads."

An extensive survey of over 11,000 Sacramento high school and junior high students dredged up similar figures: 79 percent of the teen-agers said they had never tried illegal drugs, and almost half of the remainder had tried them only once or twice.

Three-fourths of the high school seniors, however, indicated they had friends who smoked pot.

As for more powerful drugs—Speed, hallucinogens, etc.—the number of users dropped down to about one in 20. But many reported they had taken pep pills or tranquilizers—and not under doctor's prescription.

Hashish and LSD? My mail—a good barometer—indicates LSD use is up slightly from the "low" created by the bad-trip, altered-chromosome publicity. My mail also shows a small swing to hashish (superpot)—where it's available and when the price isn't prohibitive. This is bad news, for hash is at least ten times as strong as the best grass, and according to Dr. C. J. Miras, of Greece, users can develop a dependency which makes them drop out of life.

So now, if readers run true to form, I'll be flooded with letters telling me hash is no more dangerous than alcohol (except that you get busted for it).

When they come, I'll do a column on my recent interview with Dr. Miras, perhaps the world's foremost authority on the cannabis plant and its effects on man. His 10-year study of habitual "smokers" in Greece might serve as a warning to what CAN happen here!—H.

Dear Helen: Remember me? You wrote about me in your column eight years ago, and I received a lot of mail which my mother kept for me. I read it over last night and decided to tell you how much I appreciate it. I'm 11 now, and I will have to wear my brace the rest of my life. I still have many more operations ahead of me until I'm grown up, but I'm going to school and doing fine.

It would be fun to hear from some of the people who wrote to me when I was three years old. I'm old enough to answer now. Thank all of you!—PAULA, Box 307, Moore, Oklahoma, 73060.

NL All-Stars Down American With Homer

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Towering Willie McCovey provided the thunder on a gloomy, overcast afternoon with a pair of line-drive homers Wednesday to power the National League to its seventh straight victory in the 40th annual All-Star game—a 9-3 rout of the American League.

A crowd of 45,259 at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, including Vice President Spiro Agnew as a "relief pitcher" for President Nixon, saw McCovey become only the fourth man in history to hit two homers in one All-Star game.

Johnny Bench, the 22-year-old catcher of the Cincinnati Reds, almost became the fifth man but leftfielder Carl Yastrzemski leaped at the seven-foot fence in the sixth inning to rob Bench of a two-run homer. Bench hit a two-run homer in his first at-bat in an All-Star game in the second inning to put the National League ahead 3-0.

Two Homers for AL
The American League, which once led 12-4 in this series but now trails 22-17-1, got only six hits off six National League pitchers. Two of them were solo homers by Frank Howard in the second inning and Bill Freehan in the third.

The Washington crowd, sprinkled with celebrities including congressmen and baseball greats of the past attending the festivities for baseball's centennial celebration, got one of its few chances to cheer the "home" team when Howard, the Washington Senator slugger who has 34 homers this season, hit his homer.

Earlier, Howard had embarrassed the home folks by miffing Hank Aaron's pop fly in the first inning to permit the first National run.

After Howard was lifted by American League manager Mayo Smith for a pinch-runner after walking in the fourth, there wasn't much excitement in the last five innings when neither side scored.

McCovey, Bench and Felix Millan, who collected a two-run double, gave the National League all the hitting it needed in the first four innings as the hitters finally cracked the pitchers' dominance of the classic.

Turnabout
Only seven runs had been scored in 34 innings in the last three games as the National League won 2-1 in 10 innings, 2-1 in 15 innings and 1-0.

An unearned run in the first inning and Bench's two-run homer in the second inning off Mel Stottlemyre gave the National League a 3-1 lead in the game that was started under the lights because it was so overcast.

Batting practice had to be curtailed because rain started falling but it stopped by gametime and conditions weren't too bad except in the outfield which was wet and sloppy after all the rain Tuesday night.

Manager Smith said he planned to go no longer than two innings with any of his pitchers so he brought in John "Blue Moon" Odom of the Oakland A's to start the third. The N. L. had two runs off him after he threw five pitches and Odom went on to gain the dubious distinction of tying an All-Star record by giving up five hits in one inning.

First of Two
Hank Aaron started it with a single and McCovey, the 6-foot-4, 210-pound slugger of the San Francisco Giants who has 30 homers this season, followed with his two-run homer.

McCovey, who had grounded out in the first inning, was 0-for-9 in All-Star competition, until he lined Odom's 1-2 pitch off the scoreboard to make it 5-1.

After Ron Santo grounded out, Rico Petrocelli booted Cleon Jones' grounder. Bench then singled and Millan bounced a double over third to drive in two runs.

When starter and winner Steve Carlton of St. Louis doubled in the fifth run to make it 8-1, Darold Knowles of the Washington Senators replaced Odom and got a big cheer from the hometown fans when he retired two straight batters to end the inning. But it was locking the barn door too late.

Freehan Homers
Freehan's homer in the last of the third "narrowed" the gap to 8-2 but the game was all but decided and David Eisenhower, the grandson of the former president who came to the game with his wife's sister, Tricia Nixon, left the game at the end of the inning. Vice-President Agnew stayed for the rest of the game and saw the American League's last chance to get back into the game.

A walk and singles by Sal Bando and Freehan produced a run off Bob Gibson, the second N. L. pitcher, and brought up Knowles with two on and two out. Smith decided to use Seattle's Don Mincher as a pinch-hitter, knowing that a homer would make it 9-6. Mincher is hitting .240 with 17 homers although Yastrzemski, batting .256 with 29 homers, still was on the bench.

Gibson struck out Mincher and Bill Singer, Jerry Kosman, Larry Dierker and Phil Niekro blanked the A. L. the final five innings.

Detroit's Dennis McLain pitched one inning, the fourth, and was tagged for McCovey's second homer. McLain had been scheduled to start but flew back to Detroit Tuesday night after the postponement and spent three hours in a dentist's chair getting nine teeth capped. He didn't arrive at the park until after the game started and joined the bullpen crew in the second inning.

N. L. manager Red Schoendienst, who's now piloted the senior circuit to his fourth All-Star triumph, went six innings with six of his starters but finally got all of his players except catcher Chris Cannizzaro and outfielder Rusty Staub and three pitchers—Grant Jackson, Tom Seaver and Juan Marichal—in the game.

Smith used everyone except catcher Elie Rodriguez and one pitcher—Mickey Lolich. This was the first "rain check" All-Star game in history, following the classic's first-ever postponement Tuesday night on account of rain.

As far as the A. L. is concerned, it still was a washout.

Clay Again Gets 5-Year Sentence

By B. F. KELLUM
HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A federal judge rescheduled Cassius Clay today to the same five years in prison and $10,000 fine he assessed in June 1967, after Clay's conviction on a charge of draft evasion.

U.S. Dist. Judge Joe Ingraham imposed the same sentence without comment.

Clay's chief lawyer, Charles Morgan Jr. of Atlanta, Ga., filed motion of appeal at once to the 5th Circuit Court in New Orleans.

Clay will remain free on $5,000 bond posted at the time of his first appeal two years ago. Clay had sought exemption from the draft as a Black Muslim minister and as a conscientious objector.

The former prizefighter's plea that his conviction be set aside was rejected July 14 by Ingraham, who ordered him to appear for re-sentencing.

Can St. Louis and Detroit Come Back?

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Can the Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Cardinals put on a second half drive and again finish on top in the American and National Leagues.

That is the big question as the pennant races resume today in major league baseball.

The Tigers and Cardinals generally have been written off as repeat champions this year, but baseball is an unpredictable game and there always is a chance.

After all, the New York Giants of 1951 came from 13 games behind in mid-August to beat out the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Cardinals were 10 games back to Brooklyn in August of 1942, but came on to win.

The Cardinals open a home stand against the San Francisco Giants tonight in third place in the NL East, 11 games back of the first place Chicago Cubs.

The Tigers similarly open a home stand against the Kansas City Royals, also in third place in the AL East, 11 games behind the leading Baltimore Orioles.

The Tigers appear to face a more difficult task than the Cardinals. Since Baltimore is rolling along at a .677 clip with 65 victories against 31 defeats, Boston is second with a 54-42 record and the Tigers next at 52-41.

The Cards must overtake the Chicago Cubs and the New York Mets, whose six-game series at Shea Stadium and Wrigley Field excited the fans before the All-Star break.

The Cubs, who play Los Angeles today, are on top with a 60-37 record, 4 games ahead of the Mets who have a 53-39 mark. The Cards are just one game above, 500 to 49-48.

WATKINS GLEN, N. Y.—(NEA)—When an amazing racing car closes out a career which began five years ago, there is cause for some expression of sentiment.

The Ford GT-40, which was developed in the early '60s, mainly because Henry Ford II wanted to beat Ferrari at LeMans, did not finish in a blaze of glory in the six-hour endurance race at Watkins Glen; it finished, in fact, fifth. The glory that day went to the Porsches.

The GT-40 looks like Hollywood's ideal version of a racing car: long, low and mean with an enclosed cockpit and bristling with air scoops, louvers and spoilers. During its five years of racing life it was altered only slightly.

Ladd, Chiefs' Big Lineman, Out for '69

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ernie Ladd, one of the most feared linemen in pro football, won't play this season.

Halfback Dick Bass, in contrast, is ready for a strong comeback after being hampered most of the 1968 season by injuries.

Hank Stram, coach of the Kansas City Chiefs, said Wednesday that the Chiefs and Ladd had agreed it would be best for all concerned for Ladd to sit out this season and concentrate on getting into shape for the 1970 campaign.

Ladd, a 6-foot-9, 300-pound defensive tackle, underwent surgery on his left knee last January.

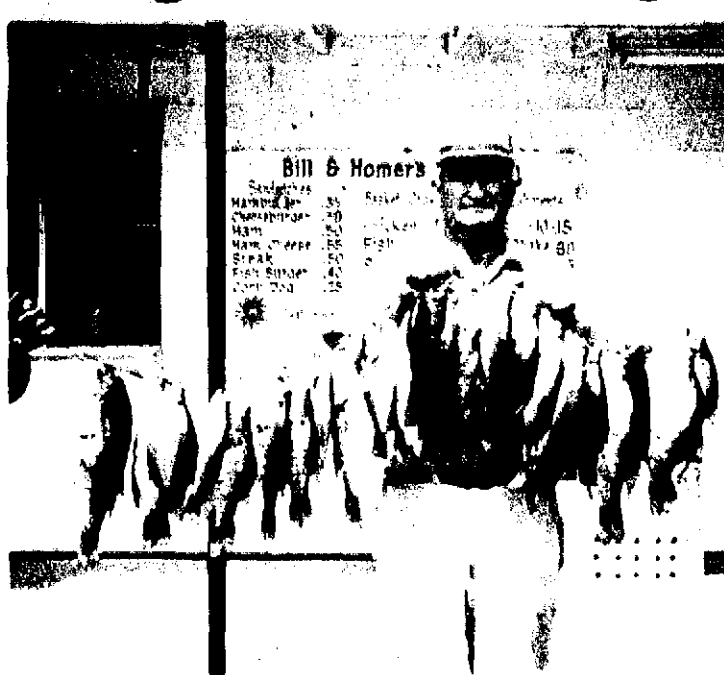

"He worked on the knee very religiously since the operation, but it hasn't responded as well as we had hoped," Stram said.

The 31-year-old Ladd, a former star at Grambling College, is a nine-year pro veteran.

Bass, the all-time leading runner for the Los Angeles Rams, said he felt great after two workouts Wednesday.

"My legs feel real good and I'm anxious to get started," the 195-pound Bass said.

Fairway Woods

Gary Player once said the reason he hit fairway woods so well was because, at 5-foot-7 and 150 pounds, he got in a lot of practice. Bigger guys were using irons while Gary, a comparative short-knocker, was back there hitting woods.

Today, at 154 pounds, Player looks as muscular as the weightlifter he is. He gives up very little distance to anybody. And, while not all of us have the time or tenacity to develop our bodies the way Gary has, we can certainly learn from his technique with fairway woods.

So muscular is Player in appearance that at address position the muscles in his arms are bulging before he even begins to swing. He braces his body in a rigid manner and it works for him.

Maintaining a strong left side throughout the swing is the key to his length and ac-

Hard-Luck Golfers Seek Akron Gold

By BOB GREEN

AKRON, OHIO (AP) — Three touring veterans, troubled in recent years byt on the rebound in the last week, hope to keep their comebacks in gear today when they set out in the first round of the $125,000 American Golf Classic.

Gay Brewer, R.H. Sikes and Tommy Jacobs all have suffered professionally in the last two or three years.

But all three found the key last week in the Philadelphia Golf Classic. None have scored regular tour victories in the last two years—Jacobs almost left the tour but all three tied with Dave Hill for the 72-hole lead at Philadelphia.

Hill, a controversial figure but the hottest man on the tour, won it on the first extra hole, but it was a singular accomplishment for the other three.

It was the best finish for Brewer, a 37-year-old veteran, since he won the Masters in 1967. He won the last two Alcan tournaments but night is considered a regular tour event.

Brewer slipped to a three-year low of $32,000 last year and really hasn't been a major factor since his triumph at Augusta, Ga. He's 34th on the current money list at $34,000.

"Last week I finally got it all put together," the pug-nosed Texan said. "Now I've just got to try to keep it."

Sikes, a think, lanky Arkansan, hasn't won since 1966 and has been on the professional ropes this year, gaining $30,421, a big part of it in the last two weeks.

L.R. Air Base to Pay Water Bill

JACKSONVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The commander of Little Rock Air Force Base says the base will pay its water bill to the City of Jacksonville after all.

Col. McVale Zumwalt said Wednesday night, "permission has been obtained to continue monthly payments pending the final settlement of this issue."

The issue is whether Jacksonville owes the Air Force $99,137.84, plus 6 per cent interest. The Air Force claims it overpaid that amount over a 12-year period for water supplied by the community of 18,000.

The Air Force general counsel in Denver, Colo., according to Jacksonville Mayor John H. Harden, had ordered the city to pay up within 30 days.

Meantime, the general counsel had told the mayor, the Air Force would withhold payment of its monthly water bill of $9,000 to $10,000, about a third of the income of the city water department.

Zumwalt said military procurement regulations govern Air Force actions in the matter, but that in this case monthly payment of the water bill would continue even though the dispute is unsettled.

Harden had said that if the Air Force didn't pay its bill by Aug. 10, "I'll pull a Castro on them and cut their water off."

Honduras Cleared of Bombing

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Both the Organization of American States and the Salvadoran military command agreed today that Honduran Air Force planes did not attack San Salvador's international airport Wednesday.

A spokesman for the OAS peace commission told a news conference in Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, that Honduran planes have not left their bases since the cease-fire went into effect Friday night. Although El Salvador refused to withdraw its troops from Honduras by Tuesday night, the deadline set in the cease-fire, a resumption of fighting has not been reported.

Persons near the airport Wednesday reported that two planes with Honduran markings dropped small bombs or mortar shells near the airport without causing serious damage.

El Salvador's military command then announced that the airport had been bombed and a border village strafed. But the command issued a communique several hours later denying this.

More Power Granted to Governor

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Constitutional Convention continued today after action Wednesday to give the position of governor more power.

The convention also voted to authorize the legislature to classify intangible personal property for assessment.

The governor's power would be expanded under the provision to streamline the executive branch of government. The Executive Branch Committee offered the proposal and delegates approved all six sections of it.

Delegate Charles D. Frierson III of Jonesboro said Arkansas had more than 170 distinct branches of government because of the independent status of some state boards and commissions.

One of the streamlining proposals adopted by the convention would have the legislature create no more than 20 principal administrative departments under which the boards and commissions would fall.

To remain independent under the proposal would be the constitutional officers, the state Highway Commission and the state Game and Fish Commission.

The governor would be empowered to make further changes although he might need legislative approval to put them into effect, and he would appoint department heads with consent of the State Senate.

Votes on the various sections ranged from 69-5 to 74-3.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hamilton of 318 Greenwood Street, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, July 20.

To help celebrate this occasion, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton's family came from various sections of the United States. A total of 43 were together for this event, including 10 children, 24 grandchildren, and 3 great-grandchildren.

In keeping with a tradition of active church participation, the family worshipped together at BeBee Memorial C.M.E. Church. During the service a special rendition of the hymn "I'll Walk With God," was dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton by their son-in-law, Mr. Marcel Todd, accompanied by his wife, Maslyn Hamilton Todd of Detroit, Mich.

Dan and Carney Hamilton were married April 30, 1919 and have resided at the same location during their wedded life.

The family wishes to express its gratitude to friends and neighbors who provided lodging and food for the family and also shared in the celebration.

17 War Dead Are Charged to Bishop

L'AQUILA, Italy (AP) — The Carabinieri issued a warrant today for the arrest of a Roman Catholic bishop who, as a captain in the German Army during World War II, relayed an order for the execution of 17 Italians in the nearby village of Filletto.

The warrant calls for the arrest of the Most Rev. Matthias Defregger, auxiliary bishop of Munich if he ever "sets foot in the territory of the Italian Republic." It said the Carabinieri, or national police, of L'Aquila want to question him about "the episode of Filletto."

The warrant was issued after a Communist member of Parliament petitioned the general prosecutor of L'Aquila's court of appeals to try Bishop Defregger as the person chiefly responsible for the executions.

 HOPE NEWSPAPER HISTORY:
 The 1929 consolidation joined the two principal newspaper lines dating back to within five years of Hope's incorporation in 1875.

 1899—Star of Hope founded as a weekly by Claude Mc-Corkle; converted to an evening daily by his son, Ed. McCorkle, publishing until the 1929 consolidation.

 The opposition line:
 1880—Hope News founded by Lowry Brothers.

 1883—Sold to Withers & Johnson, name changed to Hope Telegraph.

 1883—Later in same year resold to Claude McCorkle and renamed Hope Mercury.

 1884—Sold to James H. Betts, who named it Hope Gazette, under which name it was published continuously until 1922, published by
 Betts, J.L. Tullis, and Col. W.W.
 Folsom the last-named dying in 1916.

 1916—Purkins & Gates bought the weekly Gazette and made it a companion paper to their new daily, Arkansas Evening Herald
 —but both papers suspended in 1922.

 1926—Plant was revived by Curtis Cannon as the weekly
 Hempstead County Review.

 1927—Cannon sold plant to D.A. Gean, who established the morning Hope Daily Press.

 1929—C. E. Palmer and A.H.
 Washburn consolidated The Star and the Press as Hope Star, with Palmer as president and Washburn secretary-treasurer.

 1957—Following Mr. Palmer's death Mrs. Palmer became president.

 1969—With Mrs. Palmer's retirement from Star Publishing Co. Washburn became 76 per cent owner and president —balance 24 per cent being held by Texarkana Newspapers, Inc.

 Today's hand is also taken from Frank Perkins' 1937 book called "Vital Tricks."

 The hand is a very simple problem in play. South has to try to make nine tricks in no-trump. He wins the first trick with his king of diamonds and analyzes the lead as fourth best from ace-jack. He counts to seven quick winners: two hearts,
 one diamond and four clubs.
 He also counts four quick losers: three diamonds and the ace of spades.

 He needs to find two more winners without having to concede one more loser. He could get the two winners in hearts but would have to give up a heart trick to develop them. He can't afford to do that, so he abandons that line of play.

 He can also develop two extra winners in spades without giving his opponents that extra trick. All he has to do is to find the queen of spades in the West hand.

 Therefore he leads his jack of spades at trick two. If West covers, South's worries are over. If West ducks, South lets the jack ride and finesse against the queen again after the defense has taken their tricks.

 Since this hand is taken from a book on play, there was no discussion of the bidding by Frank Perkins but we must state that it was both enterprising and successful and somehow or other we feel that any pair that bid and made three no-trump would score a top in any duplicate game.

 What do you do now?
 A—Bid four diamonds. You are going to six somewhere but are not going to seven.

 TODAY'S QUESTION
 Instead of bidding three no-trump, your partner has jumped to four spades. What do you do now?

 Refused Salary
 While serving as president of the United States from 1929 to 1933, Herbert Hoover refused to accept a salary and instead turned the money over to charitable organizations.

 We would like to thank each one who sent flowers, food, cards and made visits during our recent sorrow.
 Also our special thanks to Drs. Wright and Holt and the nurses at Memorial Hospital.
 Your kindness and thoughtfulness will always be gratefully remembered.
 May God bless each of you.

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troops turned a brigade headquarters in the Mekong Delta over to South Vietnamese forces today in another step toward completing withdrawal of 25,000 Americans from the war zone by Aug. 31.

Control of Fire Support Base Moore at Cai Lay passed from the U.S. 9th Infantry Division to the 12th Regiment of the South Vietnamese 7th Infantry Division.

The base, 45 miles southwest of Saigon, has been headquarters of the American division's 1st Brigade and one of its combat battalions. The 7th Vietnamese Division is the major unit assuming responsibility for continuing the fight in the delta region as 11,400 men of the 9th Division pull out under President Nixon's order reducing U.S. combat forces.

About 7,400 troops of the 1st Brigade are slated to begin the transfer to Hawaii in about a week.

Meanwhile, a Ranger patrol of the division's 3rd Brigade— which is staying in Vietnam— scored an ambush victory over the Viet Cong. The U.S. Command said six of the enemy were killed when the Rangers ambushed two sampans on a river 22 miles southwest of Saigon. There were no U.S. casualties.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands reported one of the quietest nights across the nation since the current lull began June 18.

U.S. headquarters said there were 11 enemy shellings from 8 a.m. Tuesday to 8 a.m. Wednesday, six of them against American installations, but only one American was wounded.

For the third time since the lull began, the U.S. Command issued Tuesday a daily communique that contained no reports of Americans killed in combat, although it reported nearly 60 Viet Cong or North Vietnamese slain. A spokesman said, however, that some Americans were killed in small-unit actions not considered important enough to include in the daily communiqués.

U.S. forces suffered light casualties, but no one was killed, in a four-round mortar attack on an American Division engineer camp near Duc Pho, 320 miles northeast of Saigon, the U.S. Command reported.

Government troops reported 12 enemy killed in light encounters near Quang Tri, south of the demilitarized zone. In Saigon, government sources said that about 90 percent of the Saigon University students ordered to report for a month's military training had done so. The remainder will be inducted into regular military service.

On Monday, 3,009 students were summoned to report for the month's training. About 2,700 showed up, the sources said.

As the training period approached, students staged sit-down strikes and other demonstrations. They argued that the

NATURAL SIDING NEEDS A SPECIAL FINISH

By MR. FIX

Slapping a coat of paint on previously painted house siding is a simple enough procedure and the result is generally good for three or four years or even longer.

But folks with natural finish exteriors on their houses have a little more of a problem in picking the right finish or knowing how often to apply it. Exteriors of redwood, cedar and knotty pine—whether siding or shingles—are attractive, but must be cared for just as any other wood siding. The care should not only preserve, but continue the natural beauty of the wood.

You will find a number of finishes on the market, many of them new and quite improved. Some are clear and change color very little. Others contain some pigment which will color the wood slightly without hiding its grain.

In general, natural wood finishes do not last as long as a good coat of quality house paint. You will have to apply natural finishes more often (perhaps every two years) but offsetting this is the fact that they are easier to apply and generally cost less than paint.

Pick carefully. Some can be applied only over raw wood or wood that has been sanded clean. Others can be applied over the old finish.

The general breakdown is penetrating finishes and varnish finishes. The penetrating sealer soaks into the wood and leaves no surface film. Because of this there is nothing to crack or peel. A penetrating finish can be applied over bare wood or over old coats of the same sealer.

Penetrating sealers are available with a small amount of pigment as well as clear. These color the wood, but allow the grain to show. In addition, the pigment offers a little extra protection.

Check the label and try to pick a finish with a wood preservative added to it (pentachlorophenol or zinc naphthanate) which will help protect against rot and fungus.

Varnish finishes give you a glossy look and a finish that builds up with each application. Several coats will be needed on new wood. Although spar and marine varnishes belong to this class, avoid them for large expanses of siding since the hard finish tends to crack with weathering. Use varnishes of this type on doors and window frames. For siding, use the special varnishes created for siding and shingles called long-oil varnishes or processed oil varnishes.

These provide a varnish-type surface but not one that is quite so brittle. It will expand and contract with the wood. You can get these with and without pigments. Since natural siding tends to fade you may want to try the pigmented finish.

Shingle stains are penetrating sealers with a little bit of film that builds up. Pigments can be light or heavy (some as heavy as paint). You can use this finish over porous wood that has been stained or over wood treated with any penetrating sealer.

Preserve the natural siding of your house.

The Strange Case of the Order Against Tobacco

You don't have to be an anti-government newspaper to represent the two-faced dealing of bureaucrats on the tobacco question — but it helps.

The duplicity of government is obvious — under which circumstances it helps to have the habit of taking public circus clowns apart.

Here is the situation: The Federal Communications Commission has given television and radio networks and stations an ultimatum to cancel out cigarette advertising on public health grounds.

But consider this: The one and same government which grants subsidies to farmers to grow tobacco, and collects taxes on tobacco now proposes to forbid the advertising of a tobacco product because it is "injurious to health."

If that isn't lody, what is? The FCC can threaten television and radio stations because they are licensees of the federal government.

But newspapers and magazines operate under a constitutional guarantee that the press shall always be unlicensed and free. Now comes the Federal Trade Commission and backs up its threat agency, the FCC, with the threat you read on this page yesterday, to "try to retaliate if there is a massive increase in printed cigarette advertising."

Which is bureaucratic rubbish of the lowest order.

The debate over the cigarette health issue — and it's no secret that medical men are fiercely divided — is one thing; but the government's inept approach is quite another, and deserves opposition and ridicule.

How can you prohibit advertising a product before first outlawing it and gutting off all subsidies and taxation?

The whole thing smells of a backdoor approach to tobacco prohibition — when liquor prohibition was at least graced by a congressional enactment and a constitutional amendment.

To this extent the American people have lost their right to a free choice — prohibitory law now is proposed by mere federal agencies instead of through the elective congress and the constitution.

As for cigarettes themselves, they may or may not induce lung cancer. Neither I nor many other editors and professional men are convinced from what we have learned about the question.

There's an enormous information gap on the smoking issue — and I remain skeptical, considering it a mere revival of the warning given me when I started smoking at 22: "Don't inhale."

I never did, and quit cigarettes years ago for a pipe and cigars. Some still tell me they get no kick out of a cigarette without inhaling. Then they should quit.

Merely because all civilizations have their foolish ones is no reason for impressing tyrannous prohibition against an entire nation.

Youth Center in Planning Stage Here

By CINDY REESE

A Hope civic and youth center project reached the planning stage at a recent meeting of an executive committee headed by Gene White of Hope.

This executive committee is made up of nine persons representing various civic organizations throughout the city, and has the power to not only explore the possibilities of building a civic center, but also to select a site, manner of finance, and make all designs and plans for the building.

The committee, which meets every third Monday, selected the following officers: Gene White, chairman; Margie Vickers, reporter; and Mary Nell Turner, sec.-treas.

Other members are Dick Moore, Rotary Club; Guy Grigg, Kiwanis Club; Bill Cross, Lions Club; Sibil Watson, Junior Auxiliary; Joe Barantini, faculty of Hope High; Dr. Lester Stitzel, chamber of commerce; Lamar Cox, student council.

According to Mike Kelly, executive director of housing authority, the committee must first decide whether the building should be financed by raising local funds or by federal aid. In order to merit federal assistance, however, the building must serve the entire community and must be a multipurpose affair.

Approximately $3500 has been pledged to the building fund by various groups and persons, the largest part from students.

Ozan Creek Watershed Plan O.K'd

According to telegrams received by T.O. Porter and Buster Royston, members of the Ozan Creek Watershed Committee, the Ozan Creeks Watershed has been approved for planning.

The Soil Conservation Service will formulate a detail plan to control floods and retard erosion along the Ozan Creeks.

We will be asking farm owners along these creeks to sign easements to allow Soil Conservation Service engineers to cross their lands to make surveys for planning purposes.

When we have the data to plan the retarding structures and plan the channel enlargement, we will call the people together to discuss these plans.

The Ozan Creeks Watershed Committee, Benny Coleman, Chairman, has done a good job working together to get this done and approved for planning.

George F. Brown of the Soil Conservation Service says it is a pleasure to work with this group of people.

Life's a Commitment, You Have to Become Involved: Lancaster

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Is an actor a mere puppet?

Not in the opinion of Burt Lancaster, the film star millionaire who started his career as a $3-a-week circus acrobat.

"Some American actors think acting is unmanly," he said. "I felt that way myself for years—that I should be doing some other thing else. I don't now. I've found acting is a way to be myself."

"I don't think of myself as an actor in the traditional, conventional sense. Acting has become to me a way of saying what I want to say."

Lancaster, who once aspired to be an opera singer, has been saying pretty much what he wants to say since the age of 3 when, while appearing in a church nativity play, he saw a piece of gum on his shoe and startled the audience by exclaiming, "What the hell is that piece of gum doing there?"

Son of a postal clerk, Burt likes to recall the years when he and five brothers and sisters were reared in an east Harlem walkup railroad flat.

"I came from a family poor in terms of money but not in terms of courage and affection," he

Briton, Imprisoned Four Years as Spy, Exchanged by Reds

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Haggard, pale and nervous, British lecturer Gerald Brooke returned to London in a Russian airliner today after being released from four years of Soviet imprisonment.

"I feel sort of numb—I haven't really got used to speaking English again," Brooke told a news conference at London Airport.

He was wearing the gray suit in which he was arrested and a red striped British school tie. His face was drawn, his hair was cropped short and he needed a shave.

Brooke, 30, was released Wednesday after Britain agreed to exchange Soviet spies Morris and Lola Cohen for him and two young Britons held in Russia on drug charges. Negotiations for the swap extended over 11 weeks.

The Cohens, American citizens known in Britain as Peter and Helen Kroger, are serving 20-year sentences. It was expected they would be released sometime in the fall—when the other Britons also will be set free.

A crowd of 200 watched as Brooke was driven from the Soviet Aeroflot jet with a police escort to the airport building

Kennedy Probe Is Continuing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — The investigation into Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's auto accident "isn't completed—not by a long shot," a Registry of Motor Vehicles supervisor says.

The supervisor, George W. Kennedy, no relation to the senator, commented Wednesday after the state agency announced in Boston it had suspended the senator's driver's license because of the accident.

Registry officials noted temporary suspension of a license is "fairly routine in cases involving a fatality."

The suspension was based on a preliminary finding that the 37-year-old Massachusetts Democrat was at "fault" in the accident, which claimed the life of a young Washington secretary. Kennedy has been charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

"There are a lot of things still to be done," George Kennedy said. "It might be a week before a full report is ready. We are going to have to ask a lot of questions before we get what we want."

The registry said suspension of the senator's license will remain in effect until a formal hearing is conducted.

where he hugged and kissed his blonde wife, Barbara, who last saw him in February 1966.

She was arrested in Moscow with him, but was released almost immediately.

Brooke's 74-year-old mother, who has not seen her son for four years, was also at the airport.

Brooke said he was told of his release by a Russian official Wednesday and the news was "a shock."

Time and again he refused to answer questions on his treatment by the Russians, or whether he knew what British intelligence knew—that he was about to be retried on an espionage charge. Brooke had been convicted of subversive activities, for handing out leaflets for the Russian emigre organization NTS.

He declined to say whether he was still an NTS supporter and dodged questions on whether he knew about the Cohens being exchanged for his release.

"He is very, very upset—he is in a very ill state," said Brooke's wife before the news conference.

Brooke himself said: "I am not well." He has been suffering for more than a year with an intestinal ailment and said "it was aggravated by the sort of food I had to eat."

Showers to Continue Over State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Partly cloudy skies and hot days with occasional afternoon thundershowers are expected through Saturday in Arkansas, the U.S. Weather Bureau said today.

Moist, tropical air producing scattered afternoon thundershowers continues to dominate Arkansas weather patterns.

Wednesday afternoon saw another outbreak of thundershowers over much of the state. The showers resulted in varying amounts of rainfall with most cities reporting a half inch or less.

Exceptions to this were the .75 of an inch at Blytheville and the 2.25 inches in the west portion of Little Rock.

Two unconfirmed tornado funnels were sighted at Little Rock and Blasco (Prairie County) reported small hail.

Temperatures again reached the 90s in most sections of the state. The high was 101 at Texarkana.

A high pressure ridge lies along the Gulf coast with southerly winds continuing to feed moist air into Arkansas.

To the north, a slow moving cold front is triggering thundershowers activity in much of the Midwest. This front will continue slowly southeastward during the next two days, but the high pressure area should nudge the front to remain north and east of Arkansas.

Bull Shoals Group Fights Trout Fee

MOUNTAIN HOME, Ark. (AP) — The Bull Shoals Lake and White River Association has gone on record against a proposed $1 special license fee for trout fishermen.

A. D. Nuckolls of Lakeview, executive director, said the association will "oppose it as strongly as we can in its present form."

He said if the proposal is changed to some of the fee revenues would be used for the stocking of trout, the association might reconsider its position.

The state Game and Fish Commission said recently it was considering the initiation of a $1 "trout tag," to be purchased by trout anglers in addition to the regular state fishing license.

Revenues would be used for the improvement of trout fishing areas, the commission said, and projects would include the development of camping, public access and parking areas and the construction of boat-launching ramps.

Mop. Freight Derails, Burns at Curtis

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) — About 50 to 60 families were evacuated from the Curtis area seven miles south of Arkadelphia early today after 37 cars of a Missouri Pacific freight train derailed one mile east of U.S. 67.

State Police said 30 of the cars were piled four deep and were on fire this morning with flames leaping 125 to 150 feet toward the sky.

Police said 11 of the cars involved in the derailment contained chemicals. Officers said only one car was left that "poses any danger" and that attempts were being made to move it with a bulldozer.

State Police said if that one car is moved, residents will be allowed to return to their homes even though they expected the fire to continue burning for two more days.

Railroad officials could not be reached to confirm what the derailed cars contained, but State Police officials said they understand some cars contained gasoline, asphalt mixes, chloride, chlorine, sodium, magnesium, plastics and other materials.

The cars were part of a northbound, 98-car freight headed from Houston, Tex., to St. Louis Mo., then to Chicago and points east.

Cause of the derailment was not known. A railroad official in St. Louis said, "We know we have several on fire. We don't know the exact total."

Fire department personnel from Gurdon and Arkadelphia took fire-fighting equipment to the scene.

The derailment occurred about 9:50 p.m., with the derailed cars being in the middle third of the long freight.

"They really piled up," a Mo-Pac spokesman said in St. Louis.

Israeli Down 9 Arab Jets

By HAL MCCLURE
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli jets shot down six Egyptian MIGs in renewed air and ground fighting along the Suez Canal today, the army announced, following a threat by President Gamal Abdel Nasser that Egypt now is ready to fight to regain Arab territories.

While Israeli officials reported six MIG fighters downed, other Israeli military sources said the total of the Egyptian aircraft brought down was nine.

As the jets fought, Israeli and Egyptian guns blazed across the 103-mile canal which now divides Egypt from the Sinai Peninsula, seized by the Israelis in the June 1967 war.

The Israelis said their jets attacked Egyptian gun positions in the third air strike across the canal since Sunday.

Up to now the Israelis had claimed to have shot down 33 Soviet-built Egyptian planes for the loss of five Israeli warplanes since the 1967 war.

Nasser made his threat to go on the offensive in a speech in Cairo Wednesday.

Commenting on the speech, Defense Minister Moshe Dayan of Israel told newsmen: "The Egyptians may renew the war and bomb Tel Aviv."

He added that Nasser apparently believes a new war with Israel already has begun.

Dayan stressed, however, he does not think a full-scale war is imminent this summer. But he said Israel would have to be "prepared for everything Nasser said he might do."

The air action on the waterway began with Israeli jets hitting Egyptian gun positions.

Then, the Israelis said, Egyptian aircraft attacked Israeli positions on the Israeli side of the canal.

It was not immediately known whether any Egyptian aircraft crashed on the Israeli side or how many aircraft were lost in aerial combat or by ground fire.

A spokesman said the planes hit positions along the banks of the canal that had been firing at the Israelis on the other side.

Apollo 11 Splashes Down Safely, Ending Moon-Landing Flight

Nixon Greet Astronauts in Pacific

By RALPH DIGHTON

ABOARD USS HORNET (AP)

— The Apollo 11 spaceship, carrying the first men to walk the surface of the moon, splashed down today into the Pacific Ocean where their President awaited them.

Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins hit the water after a blazing re-entry into the atmosphere. During the re-entry, which started with the ship going 24,600 miles an hour, the temperature on the heat shield of the capsule reached 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

They were to be taken from the capsule by helicopter and brought to an air-tight silver trailer on board the aircraft carrier Hornet.

The landing target was shifted from 250 miles to the east Wednesday night when the weatherman forecast thundershowers for the original touchdown point. The new target, for which the astronauts had to shift slightly the angle of their ship on re-entry into earth's atmosphere, was 950 miles southwest of Hawaii.

The landing was to be the triumphant end to a momentous eight days—eight days in which man reached out and touched the moon.

But, the Apollo 11 astronauts will be treated more like lepers than conquerors.

Baby Falls 2 Stories; Recovering

The six-months-old infant of Capt. and Mrs. Norman Blaylock, nee Janice Lloyd, fell from the second floor level of Hillcrest Apartments to the ground Tuesday, and after examination by a local physician, was taken by ambulance to St. Vincent infirmary in Little Rock.

Early reports on the baby's condition were good. However, by Wednesday, she had developed a blood clot and was showing signs of a concussion. In spite of this, doctors report that she is doing better and will "be all right."

Capt. Blaylock, the baby's father, has flown in from Vietnam and should be in Little Rock by today. Mrs. John Lloyd, the baby's grandmother, is also in Little Rock.

Mrs. Nixon Watches T.V.

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — After dining Hawaiian style, Pat Nixon got a few hours sleep and prepared to watch the Apollo 11 astronauts splashdown today on television in her hotel suite overlooking the Pacific.

— The Apollo 11 spaceship, carrying the first men to walk the surface of the moon, splashed down today into the Pacific Ocean where their President awaited them.

Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins hit the water after a blazing re-entry into the atmosphere. During the re-entry, which started with the ship going 24,600 miles an hour, the temperature on the heat shield of the capsule reached 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

The landing was to be the triumphant end to a momentous eight days—eight days in which man reached out and touched the moon.

But, the Apollo 11 astronauts will be treated more like lepers than conquerors.

They will join President Nixon in watching the return from the moon today, of spacecraft commander Neil A. Armstrong, Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins.

The new position—13 degrees 19 minutes north and 169 degrees 10 minutes west—is 241 miles from Johnston Island, a U.S. base in mid-Pacific.

With Nixon, scheduled to arrive about an hour before splashdown, will be Air Force Col. Frank Borman, command pilot of lunar orbiting Apollo 8, and Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

Capt. C. J. Selberlich, the Hornet's skipper, told newsmen "we're all set" to make recovery in new area.

Lt. Cmdr. William Tasker, ship meteorologist, said, "There is no sign of showers in new area and it should be mostly clear."

His forecast called for scattered clouds and 10 miles visibility with winds of 16 to 24 knots and swells of five to seven feet.

After Apollo 11 was righted in the water, frogmen jumped into the sea from helicopters and attached additional flotation collars to make it stable some 15 minutes after touchdown.

Moon Men Return Home in Glory

— The men who opened the Moon Age returned to their home planet today, blazing back through the earth's atmosphere to a landing in the Pacific about nine miles from this recovery ship where President Nixon waited to greet the space heroes.

The Apollo 11 ship, carrying Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins, hit the water at 12:50 p.m. EDT, climaxing an adventure in which two men walked the surface of the moon for the first time.

On landing, Apollo 11 turned upside down in the three-to-six-foot waves and the astronauts inflated flotation bags to right it. The same thing happened to Apollo 7 when it landed last October.

"We're still in stable 2 (upside down)," Armstrong reported, "but slowly righting ourselves." Eleven minutes later, with aircraft and helicopters overhead, Armstrong reported ship bobbing right side up.

"Stable 1," he called out. The landing was not visible from the carrier because of a combination of a hazy sky and the fact that it was just after dawn in the Pacific.

Like hundreds of sailors on the deck, Nixon craned and peered through binoculars as he tried to see the descending craft.

The first report from the recovery forces said the crew was in "excellent" condition.

Live television from the ship showed Nixon peering toward the horizon. When word came that the astronauts were safely down, he clasped his hands and smiled. With the President was Col. Frank Borman, who commanded last December's Apollo 8 moon orbit flight, Secretary of State William Rogers, and space administrator Thomas O. Paine.

The Hornet, stationed about 950 miles southwest of Hawaii, steamed toward the landing point.

Because of strict quarantine measures, Nixon will not shake hands with the astronauts. They will put on isolation suits and be transferred from a helicopter to an airtight silver trailer below decks. This will be their home during a 2½-day sea-air trip to a quarantine facility at the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex.

MONEY CLIPS

by Mort Reed

In 30 years I have seen practically every type and style of altered coin there is to see, but this one is probably the most useless of all. Coins are generally altered to represent one of two things: an exceptional value and solely with intent to defraud. No denomination of U.S. coinage has escaped this deceptive practice.

Mrs. CWM, Cincinnati Times: Your "rare" 10-cent piece is just what I have demonstrated—an altered nickel three-cent piece. The upper and lower left and right-hand tips of the outer letters I have seen "chased" by a talented metalworker.

Chasing is an old art but still practiced by some jewelry designers and metalmiths. It is merely a process of working unwanted metal to a more desirable location to form a design or pattern. In this case it has been "chased" toward the dividing space between the two letters I to form the enclosure of the numeral 6.

The original was exactly as the illustration above. Since this coin has been in your family for a long time, I suspect it was kept as a memento of earlier days and its defacing was performed by someone trying his skill at metalworking rather than trying to create a piece of value.

Mr. Shannon Roberts, Prichard, Ala.: It is impossible to strike a two-headed or two-tailed coin. The mint machinery just does not work that way. What you have is a two-headed 1955 Lincoln cent made by one of two craftsmen turning out two-headed coins as novelties.

These pieces are available in every denomination ever issued. They are not unlawful since there is no intent to defraud and can be purchased singly or in sets. I suggest you write Max Fields, Greenfield, Ind. He makes these pieces.

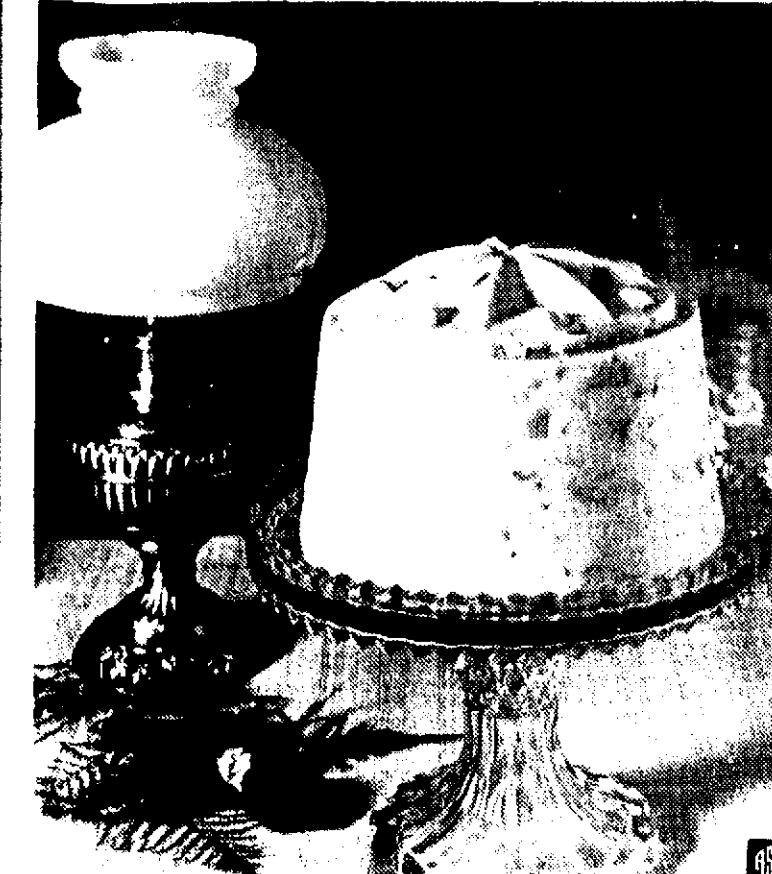

Mr. John Suriano, Vliet, N.Y.: The coin illustrated by your rubbings indicate it is a Spanish real or, if you prefer, a piece of eight. It was minted in Mexico in 1807 and bears the bust of CARLOS III. It is commonly called a Pillar dollar because of the two Herculean pillars flanking the shield of Spain on the reverse.

Robert Harris, in his book, "Pillars and Portraits," lists this silver coin as No. 534 and values it at $6 in fine condition to $15 in extra-fine condition.

Your letter to him should be addressed to Bonanza Press, San Jose, Calif. 95126.

Orders for the Dwight David Eisenhower medal should be directed to Presidential Art Metals, 10 W. National Road, Englewood, Ohio, not to the U.S. mint.

Turn Loose With Tuna Mousse When The Weather Waxes Hot

Tuna Mousse is terrific when it's torrid outside. It makes a refreshing main dish that is easy to prepare. Light as Tuna Mousse looks and tastes, it is high in nutrition because canned tuna in vegetable oil is comparable in complete protein to lean meat. Have you gotten on to tuna's money-saving ways in your meals? Canned tuna costs so little, it is one of the very best bargains in protein foods today. Many families are serving tuna twice a week to keep up nutrition and flavor in their meals at modest cost.

Tuna Mousse

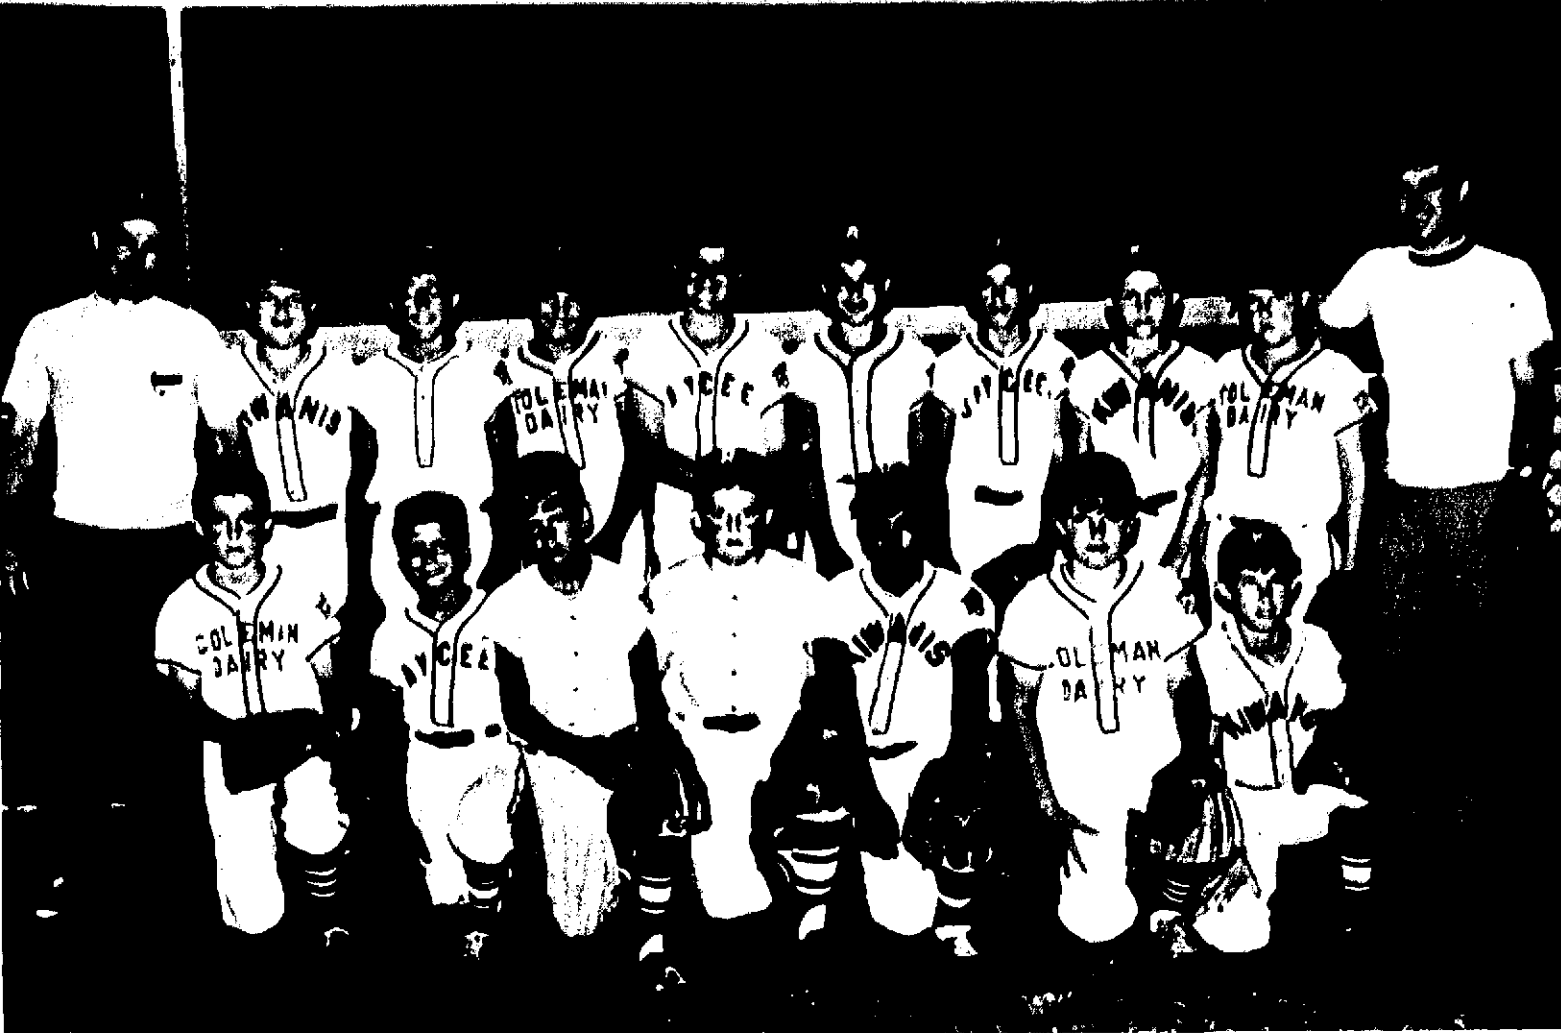

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 1/2 cups cold chicken broth, divided
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil

1 cup diced celery
1 cup diced green pepper
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Sprinkle gelatin on 1/2 cup of the chicken broth in saucepan to soften. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat; stir in remaining 1 cup broth and lemon juice. Chill until mixture is the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Mix in tuna, and celery and green pepper. Fold in whipped cream. Turn into a 4-cup mold; chill until firm. Unmold to serve.

Yield: 6 servings.

Nautical Skill Pays Off In Predicted Log Runs

Specifications in the rules for predicted log contests define requirements for inboard cruisers like the above, at least 19 feet long, and for outboard cruisers at least 16 feet long.

By JIM CROSSLEY

Those who depend on the indulgence of the sea, treat the sea with courtesy. That is the reason, no doubt, for the formality, custom and etiquette prevalent among experienced boating people.

A good example of this is in the tense moments of a currently popular activity among power boat operators—the predicted log contest.

Approaching a control point on a course, a skipper must say to the observer, or umpire, who is on board: "Stand by."

As the boat comes even closer, he says: "Get ready."

When the boat is abeam each buoy, the skipper calls: "Mark." And the observer makes a note of the exact time, to the nearest second.

No, "Hey there, we're getting closer" or anything like that. Among boaters, this is the shipshape method called for and this is the way it is done.

The predicted log contest, in which these little scenes take place, is a liquidized sports car rally.

It is hard enough to reach a destination on time with all the help clocks and watches can give. Just to make it tougher, the predicted log contest eliminates timekeeping devices. The boat operator tries to pass a set of control points and the finish line at times he predicts in advance.

The American Power Boat Association, the United States Power Squadron and the U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary all are high on predicted log contests. For good reasons. They make the skippers better acquainted with their boats. Skippers prove their ability to themselves and gain confidence. The contests make them safety conscious.

Boating families get other benefits, social ones. The excitement spices up the summer routine. Rivalry afloat cultivates friendship ashore.

During the contest an impartial observer is placed aboard each competing boat. He's the only one who has access to the time. He keeps a record which is later compared with the sealed prediction of his assigned skipper. The course has at least three legs in different directions and must be at least 25 miles long. There are two control points in addition to a start and finish line.

"Each skipper knows from experience the normal forward speed potential of his boat at various r.p.m.s," one veteran contestant explains.

"Currents and winds vary and figuring tricky factors like these determines the accuracy of the predicted log."

"Then there's strategy. That can be important. Your rival can run one leg very fast and the next quite slow. That can throw you when you are running blind, only guessing at the time."

For some power boaters there's nothing to substitute for slicing through the waves at top throttle in speed events. When the American Power Boat Association was born in 1903, there were a few years when speed racing for cruisers was attempted. The boats were so dissimilar and hard to handicap that cruiser racing became limited. For most boaters, predicted log contests fill the gap beautifully. Nautical skill pays off, rather than daring. And even the smallest and slowest cruiser in the fleet can win.

Finishing Touch

For the fresh, no make-up look of today, use translucent powder as a finishing touch.

Don't Tease Your Fall

If you want the fall you wear to look as well as possible, there are a few steps to follow. First, don't tease your fall. Second, handle your fall with care and brush very gently with a wide-bristled brush.

Pine Bluff Ups Hospital Daily Rate

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Jefferson Hospital in Pine Bluff will increase all daily room rates $6 as of Aug. 1, according to Administrator C. E. Melville.

In a letter to all patients in the hospital, Melville said the increase would make the hospital's predominant rate $27 daily for a semiprivate room and $32 daily for a private room.

The last room rate increase at the hospital took place Feb. 1, 1967, he said. Melville blamed increases in operating costs for the latest increase.

N. Vietnam Ignores Plea on Election

PARIS (AP) — South Vietnamese pledged today that Viet Cong candidates in the free elections proposed by President Nguyen Van Thieu would be guaranteed equal opportunities and would be immune from discrimination or reprisals.

But North Vietnam and the Viet Cong ignored pleas from the United States and South Vietnam to reconsider their earlier categorical rejection of the Thieu plan.

South Vietnamese delegate Pham Dang Lam told the 27th weekly meeting of the Vietnam peace talks that his government "has no intention whatsoever of giving itself some advantageous position in the proposal it has put forth. It only desires that the elections should faithfully reflect the aspirations of the South Vietnamese population."

Lam said nothing of the date when such elections could be held. Thieu said this week that it might take two years to organize such elections.

Lam repeated that the Saigon government was prepared to consider any suggestions the other side may wish to put forward concerning the organization of free elections.

Learn to Upholster By Training on the Job

By ERNIE HOOD
Distributed by NEA

Over-all employment of furniture upholsterers is expected to show little or no change through the 1970s. Most job openings will result from the replacement of experienced workers who retire, die or transfer to other fields.

However, deaths and retirements alone are expected to provide more than 600 job openings annually and there have been unfilled job openings in this trade in recent years because the supply of qualified workers has been insufficient to meet the demand. Moreover, this shortage may continue for several years, because the number of people currently being trained is still insufficient to meet anticipated future requirements.

More than one-half of the estimated 32,000 furniture upholsterers employed in 1967 worked in small shops. Many also were employed by furniture stores, and a few worked for organizations such as hotels, motels, theaters and others that maintain their own furniture.

Among factors tending to increase requirements for furniture upholsterers are the growing expenditures for furniture, the growth in family formation and the higher levels of personal incomes. However, the rising cost of reupholstering furniture relative to replacing it is expected to offset requirements that will result from these factors.

Earning data for upholsterers are not available on a national basis, but information from a number of employers across the country indicated that experienced upholsterers earned from $2.00 to $4.50 or better per hour and helpers from $1.25 to $1.75 an hour. Some were paid on a piece-work basis. Hourly wage rates in the North and West were generally higher than those in the South.

The most common way to learn the trade is to complete an informal on-the-job training program in an upholstery shop. Prospective upholsterers are hired as helpers to perform simple jobs, such as removing old fabric, padding and springs from furniture. As they gain experience, they perform more complex tasks, such as fastening webbing and springs and sewing on upholstery fabric and trimming. Inexperienced helpers who have initiative may become skilled upholsterers after completing three years of on-the-job training.

Upholsterers can learn their skills while employed as plant workers in furniture factories by getting experience in a variety of plant jobs that are closely related to furniture upholstery. They may also learn upholstery while in high school by completing vocational courses that include chair caning, furniture making, textile fabrics, and upholstery repair. However, on-the-job training is usually required before these workers can qualify as journeymen upholsterers.

A few people acquire the skills of the trade through formal apprenticeship programs that last from three to four years and include related classroom instruction.

Young people interested in becoming furniture upholsterers should have good manual and finger dexterity. They must be able to do occasional heavy lifting. Good sight, an eye for detail and an ability to distinguish between colors are important.

A flair for creative work is helpful.

Furniture upholsterers usually furnish their own hand tools, which cost an average of $30 to $40. Power tools are provided by employers.

Almost one out of every three upholsterers is self-employed—a higher proportion than in most other trades. Opening an upholstery shop usually requires an initial investment of $3,000 to $5,000.

More information can be supplied by high school counselors and local offices of the Federal-State Employment Service or can be obtained from Upholsterers International Union of North America, 1500 North Broad St., Philadelphia, Pa. 19121.

Offices of the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training are sources of information about apprenticeship training. (Ernie Hood is an information officer with the Labor Department.)

U.S. Labor Department Bulletin 1550-39, which can be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402, at a price of 5 cents, is another source of information on upholstery.

THOUGHTS

"I hold fast my righteousness, and will not let it go; my heart does not reproach me for any of my days."—Job 27:6.

Every human being has a work to carry on within, duties to perform abroad, influence to exert, which are peculiarly his, and which no conscience but his own can teach.—William E. Channing, American clergyman.

I thank God whom I serve with a clear conscience, as did my fathers, when I remember you constantly in my prayers.—II Timothy 1:3.

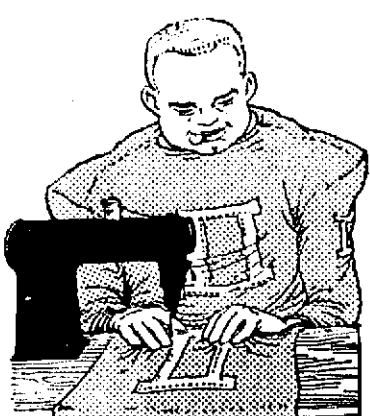

Most people are willing to take the sermon on the Mount as a flag to sail under, but few will use it as a rudder by which to steer.—Oliver Wendell Holmes, American poet and essayist.

For no other foundation can anyone lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ.—I Cor. 3:11.

Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

HOME SEWING GUYS! Growing trend toward home sewing among boys. "Doing own thing" and economics are cited as reasons. One southern (Georgia) high school has 48 boys enrolled in "family living" course that includes sewing. Another Indiana high school has a squad of boy sewing enthusiasts working under supervision this summer on new football jerseys for the school team. (Will they be break-away in fact?) One of the cutters wanted to use Roman numerals for the jersey numbers. "They're easier to cut and harder to read," was his reasoning.

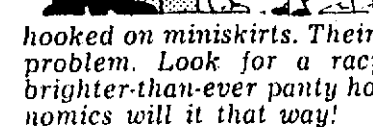

HOME SEWING GOES WILD: Recent study of high school girls (median age 15.5) shows 82 per cent of girls 12-17 sew. Thirty per cent complete at least a garment a month. Eleven per cent of those who do not sew would like to be able to do so. Main reasons for the burgeoning youth interest are (a) doing "your own thing" and (b) high cost of ready-to-wear.

LAWYERS GROUP to save their automobile insurance action. Fighting like wounded clients, the country's legal eagles are throwing their weight against plans to limit medical and damage liability of motorists. The guidelines are being published in legal journals and the self-serving aspects are apparent to laymen interested in lower insurance coverage. The lawyers are tooth and mace battling to save their lucrative personal injury practices. Insurance companies are caught in the squeeze that places the fiscal burden back on the driver. Looking for ways to justify higher rates, the companies pass along a disproportionate share to households with teen-age drivers. A "fixed" basis of compensation would chop off millions and millions of dollars of legal fees. Look for scary scare tactics.

THE MAGICAL DAY! One day sometime after Jan. 1, 1970, "adults" will become "the minority group" (age-wise) in the United States. Trouble is, chronological age is a poor way to measure "state of mind."

SEEING THRU IT ALL: Sheer skirts over body stockings a trend to watch!! Getting a big assist from mannequins in store windows. They come on in a large way. The whole scene is far more modest than swimsuits and is in action across the board from ages 15 to 50. Has greater momentum with older set, though, mainly due to the poor taste involved when the middle agers try to mini-mize their years.

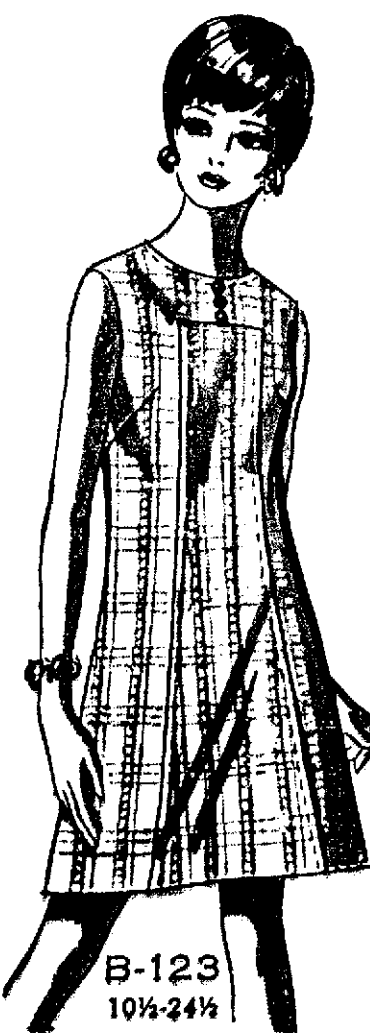

THE GREAT RUN RACE: Fifty per cent of all hosiery sales come from fashion stockings and panty hose. Ratio growing yearly. Thirty-six pairs a year is an average figure being quoted to drug-store owners as makers step up their sales pressure. The turnover is "greater than shaving cream, cosmetics, shampoo, toothpaste and just about anything else in your store," says one ad. Doesn't say much for the technology of the industry. Says heaps for the forces of fashion involved. Disturbs heaps of teens now hooked on miniskirts. Their panty-hose costs are a growing problem. Look for a racy return to heavier-than-ever, brighter-than-ever panty hose and body stockings. The economics will it that way!

Officials Tight-Lipped on Kennedy

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate colleagues are being unusually tight-lipped about the political consequences of Edward M. Kennedy's weekend accident which took the life of a woman riding in his car.

With the exception of Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who has said the whole affair could have happened to anyone, usually loquacious senators generally have refused to discuss the matter, even on a relatively secure off-the-record basis.

Even Republicans, who see Kennedy as a potential opponent for the presidency, have been reluctant to talk about the matter privately, much less publicly.

Those few senators willing to discuss the incident anonymously generally seem to agree that Kennedy's political future is not in his own hands and indicate they are withholding judgment until he explains the affair more fully.

What they want to know involves Kennedy's failure to report the accident to police until nine hours after his car plunged off a bridge on a Massachusetts island, carrying May Jo Kopechne to her death. Miss Kopechne, a former assistant to Kennedy's late brother Robert, had attended a party with Edward Kennedy and several other persons just before the accident.

The senators who would talk say if there is any semblance of a cover up, either by Massachusetts officials or Kennedy himself, of his movements during the nine hours, public reaction could be politically disastrous.

A logical and detailed explanation of what Kennedy did and where he went after the girl drowned in his submerged car could help offset in their minds critical comment already surfacing in the mall that "the Kennedys can get by with anything in Massachusetts" because of their wealth and political power.

Democratic colleagues searching for mitigation of the awkward circumstances cite Kennedy's quoted statement to the father of the dead girl, that "I wish it had been me" as the kind of human reaction likely to arouse public sympathy for the last active male adult of a family already seared with tragedy.

But there is a general feeling among them that it was a mistake for a member of the Kennedy entourage to report that the senator had repeatedly offered to pay the expenses of Miss Kopechne's funeral.

Apart from the obvious anxiety of Kennedy to do anything he could to help amek amends for the accident, they feared this could only act to revive cynical criticisms that the Kennedys always felt their money could buy anything.

Further developments in the case seem likely to have a bearing on the influence Kennedy has with Democratic colleagues in the Senate in his position as the party whip, or assistant leader.

Because of general belief that he had the inside track for the presidential nomination, Kennedy's views on the issues have been given a weight seldom accorded those of a No. 2 man.

He was largely instrumental, for example, in getting the Democratic Policy Committee to take the unanimous position that tax reforms must be in hand and ready for action before the Senate would be allowed to vote on the House-approved extension of the 10 per cent income surtax.

In his absence, that resolution appears to be deteriorating.

If he remains under a cloud, considerably less attention is likely to be paid to his views

Drop Doughnuts Are Rewarding Treat

Doughnuts are perennially popular for coffee breaks and after-school snacks. A typically American treat, they were especially favored in colonial New England. Early "doughnuts" were drop doughnuts a bit larger than a walnut and spherical in shape.

These tempting Apricot Doughnut Puffs retain the size and shape of their New England ancestors, but take added flavor interest from rolled oats, chopped apricots and lemon peel. The oats also contribute interesting texture to these light, flavorful doughnuts.

APRICOT DOUGHNUT PUFFS
Makes 3 dozen

1/2 cup chopped dried apricots	4 teaspoons baking powder
2 eggs	1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar	1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup milk	2/3 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
2 tablespoons vegetable oil	1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour

Cover apricots with boiling water and let stand about 5 minutes. Thoroughly drain and squeeze out excess liquid.

Beat eggs, gradually beat in sugar. Stir in milk and oil. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg, stir in oats and lemon peel. Add dry ingredients to egg mixture, blend well. Stir in apricots.

Drop batter by tablespoonfuls into hot deep fat (375°F.) and fry until golden brown, about 3 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar.

and his wishes by Democrats who will be looking elsewhere for a new champion.

There could be a similar deterioration in Kennedy's standing in Massachusetts, where he has been expected to seek re-election next year.

They call 'em "pop-tunes" because they're enough to make you blow your mind.
